

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN WAKE OF STORM TAKE TREMENDOUS TOLL IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA; 25 DEAD

Weather Bureau Predicts That the Worst of Torrential Rains is Over—Residents of Glendale Ordered to Evacuate Their Homes—Communication With Outside World is Completely Cut Off.

By Ralph B. Jordan
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Mar. 3.—(INS)—Death, destruction and chaotic disaster took a tremendous toll in southern California today, the result of one of the worst storms in 60 years.

In the wake of the diminishing storm it was estimated that between 25, and 35 persons lost their lives and property damage had run into untold millions.

Residents of Los Angeles, Los Angeles County and Southern California in general breathed easier this morning with reports from the weather bureau that the worst of the torrential rains was over.

Large sections of track were torn up and several rail bridges were reported to be out.

The death toll was placed at 48 in fragmentary reports here.

All residents of Glendale, Calif., were ordered to evacuate their homes to escape the fast rising waters, it was said.

A highway tunnel near Newhall, Cal., and the railroad viaduct at the Los Angeles railroad station were reported to have caved in.

There was no word concerning possible casualties in the mishaps.

Westbound Santa Fe trains including the two streamliners, El Capitán and the superchief were held at Ash Fork, Ariz. It was believed all rail traffic in the Los Angeles area would be tied up indefinitely.

The chief dispatcher's office received word that one section of the Santa Fe track on Cajon Mountain near San Bernardino had been swept away by a landslide 300 feet long and 25 feet deep.

Most of those killed had been washed out to sea when a bridge over the normally dry Los Angeles River collapsed in a raging flood torrent. They were carried out to sea before.

Moosehaven Committee To Meet This Evening

Members of Moosehaven committee, with Miss Margaret Stevenson as chairman, will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. William Fawcett, senior regent, to arrange to help supply some needed articles for Moosehaven, the "home of opportunity" for aged members of the Loyal Order of the Moose. These articles are supplied according to the ability of the chapters, and contributions of the public. Friends and members of Moosehaven are remembered with cards and gifts at Christmas and other holidays, and the birthday of each of the women and men.

Twelve Are Named On Bicentennial Committee

Twelve University of Pennsylvania alumni prominent in Bucks County civic affairs have been appointed to a University of Pennsylvania Bicentennial Committee for the Bristol district, according to Edward S. Landreth, of Bristol, chairman of the committee.

Those selected were: Dr. James Collins, Edward Leslie Helwig, John L. Kilevne, Lawrence A. Monroe, Esq., Dr. Max R. Seigel, all of Bristol; Dr. Horace Fleckenstein, of Newportville; Myron W. Harris, Esq., Langhorne; and Dr. William L. Noe, Jr., and Dr. Henry H. Storer, also of Langhorne; Paul J. Taylor and Dr. Ralph M. Fox, both of Morrisville; and Joseph Mackay, of South Langhorne.

The Bristol district committee is one of more than 200 committees organized among alumni and friends of the University of Pennsylvania throughout the United States to arrange for the observance of the University's 200th birthday celebration in 1949.

Members of the committee will participate in a program, which, during the next three years, will endeavor to bring a definite part of the University's cultural life to each community in which the alumni lives.

A part of this program will consist of increasing the University's resources and facilities for educational work, including the adaptation of property at Valley Forge as a supplemental campus upon an experimental basis.

Also included among the special projects is the establishment of Franklin fellowships and scholarships, a new chemistry building and endowment, a new library building and endowment, and funds for the work of the University Museum. The financial objective of the Bicentennial program is $12,500,000.

"GRANGE HALL SHOULD BE COMMUNITY CENTER"

State Overseer Gross Tells Grangers To Keep Young People Interested

OFFICERS INSTALLED

LANGHORNE, Mar. 3.—An address by state overseer, Isaac Gross, and installation of officers, were highlights of the meeting of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia County Pomona Grange, No. 22, which took place in the Memorial House, here, yesterday, with sessions during the morning and afternoon.

"A Grange hall should be a community center. We must keep our young people interested," was one of the pertinent statements of state overseer Gross.

"Have faith in the youth of today. Train them in the Christian home, the church and the Grange," he added.

In his address to the Grangers Mr. Gross also had this to say: "Richland Grange meets every Monday night. Their young people are present, not only to participate in the social hour, but to help with community affairs. Get your young people interested in dramatic work."

Mr. Gross complimented the installing team from Montgomery county. "They did the most beautiful work I have ever seen, excepting State or National Grange. I congratulate the new officers, but Patrons, you must cooperate, work hand in hand, achieve some good in our great and noble cause."

"You will notice where the Grange is farther away from large cities it accomplishes the most good."

"Keep the public informed what benefits Grange has given the community and what it is planning for the future."

The meeting was presided over by Worthy Master B. Palmer Tomlinson. After group singing, "Stay on the Farm," salute to the Flag, and singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Margaret R. Slack, and approved.

Pomona Deputy Frank L. Magill, Tyro Hall Grange, reported he had visited Pineville Grange and installed officers. He found Pineville Grange working with enthusiasm. He had also visited Edgewood Grange and found it progressing.

The finance committee chairman, Edwin Ridge, gave a favorable report of the accounts of the treasurer, Jesse G. Webster.

Flora, Mrs. Sickle, reported she and Mr. Sickle and Miss Margaret R. Slack had visited Mrs. William Preston, who is ill.

A short recess was declared while the Chaplain completed preparations for a memorial service. Grange re-assembled in the fourth degree and an impressive service was held in memory of the late John Henry, Tyro Hall Grange.

The Chaplain, Mrs. Florence L. Dyer, and Pomona Mae Smith were led to the altar by Assistant Steward Henry Pickering and acting Lady Assistant Steward, Miss Laura Vassey. Chaplain Dyer read Scripture portions, and receiving a floral piece from Pomona, placed it on the altar. Mrs.

PLAN DRIVE FOR FUNDS FOR NURSING SERVICE

To Get Under Way in Morrisville Borough Early in Month of April

MRS. PLATT IN CHARGE

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 3.—The annual drive for funds for the nursing service of the community will get underway early next month, with Mrs. Floyd Platt serving as chairman.

According to Red Cross officials, $1,200 will be needed and the public will be asked to give generously to this worthy service.

Captains and solicitors will be appointed by Mrs. Platt and the districts assigned next month so that the appeal may begin early.

Among the reports submitted was one by Mrs. Isaac Scott, of the clothing committee, showing 72 garments received from the Needlework Guild and 104 garments distributed to the needy. Mrs. Charles Young, chairman of the production committee, reported that her group supplemented by a group of women at the home of Mrs. William Burgess and another at the home of Mrs. J. E. Erwin, completed in emergency order for 15 dresses, which were sent to the refugees in Haiti.

Another class in Braille is forming and the first grade will start as soon as enough members are enrolled. All those interested should communicate with Mrs. Isaac Scott, Jr., the chairman. Mrs. H. E. Abel has just received a certificate for her work in this branch.

On Wednesday, a class in home hygiene and care of the sick was formed by the Red Cross, with Mrs. Joseph Schermerhorn as chairman. Mrs. Herman Forsythe will be the teacher. The class will meet in the Community House at two p. m. Those interested should get in touch with Mrs. Schermerhorn, Mrs. Forsythe or Miss Laura Koch.

In her monthly report, the community nurse, Miss Koch, stated a total of 158 visits were made with 10 to maternity patients and their new born babies, and that 54 were bedside care of ill patients, medical and surgical. In addition to nursing care, other forms of service were provided for the less fortunate for the comfort and recovery of the patient. Hospitalization was procured for one patient, dispensary treatment for two others, medical care in the home for another and assistance in securing dressings and medicines for others.

Sick room appliances were used from the loan closet for families not in a position to purchase articles needed.

Credulity Strained

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT's denial, through his secretary, that he is personally to profit from the sale of his public speeches and messages to newspapers and magazines, but only from the books, is too belated to carry much conviction. It seems disingenuous and not entirely sincere in that it obviously seeks to convey the idea that he never intended to profit thereby.

ACCEPTANCE of that idea imposes a severe strain on the credulity. That is as far as one can go with a President. Certainly the record does not sustain the idea. It seems, in fact, a typical White House way of escaping from a painful position, the same method employed a month or so ago when at one press conference Mr. Roosevelt suggested abolishing all holding companies and at the next contended that he had been misrepresented. Between the two conferences he had been subjected to a withering criticism for the absurd impracticability of his proposal. His denial was made after it became apparent he was occupying an untenable position.

EXACTLY the same thing appears to have happened in this business of the publication of his papers and speeches. On February 8 the President confirmed the fact that the five volumes of "The Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt" were soon to be issued and that in advance of the books, serialization rights had been

WOMAN DROPS DEAD VISITING ILL SISTER

Mrs. Alexander Camellucci Dies Very Suddenly In Trenton Hospital

HAD NOT BEEN ILL

A Bristol woman dropped dead in a Trenton hospital last night, while visiting her sister who is a patient in the institution.

Mrs. Rose Camellucci, 47, of 1808 Wood street, accompanied by her nephew, Anthony Vennucci, went to St. Francis Hospital early last evening to visit her sister, Mrs. Vincenza Cerilli, also of Bristol. Mrs. Cerilli had been a patient in the hospital for just a few days. As Mrs. Camellucci walked into the room in which her sister was confined, she suddenly dropped to the floor, dead.

The deceased is the wife of Alexander Camellucci, who survives her, as do also two brothers, Luigi and Frank Vennucci, and three children, Alfred, Albina and Clote.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral Saturday afternoon at one o'clock from the late residence of the deceased with services to follow at two o'clock in the Italian Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour. Burial will be in the Bristol Cemetery under the direction of Galzerano.

HEALTH AND SAFETY GROUP OF SCOUTS DISCUSS DISEASES

Meeting Held With Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Who Gives Some Advice

FIRE PREVENTION

Committee to Make Every Effort to Prevent Fires at Camp Buccoo

Dr. J. Fred Wagner conferred with the Scouting Leaders of the Bucks County Council, who are responsible for health and safety, at a meeting at the home of H. W. Thompson. It was the quarterly meeting of the health and safety committee. The Bristol physician gave advice on the identification of children's diseases, and how to recognize illnesses that are prevalent during the summer months.

A plan for fire prevention equipment at Buccoo Camps was presented by Chairman Thompson. Suggestions for the sources of necessary equipment were given. Fortunately, there have not been any fires at Buccoo, and it is the effort of the committee to avoid one happening.

Scout Executive William F. Livermore presented a suggested form of by-laws to guide the health and safety program. The outline of duties for the Field Commissioners of Health and Safety, Robert Geiger, Andalusia, and George E. Dornier, Doylestown, were approved.

Safety precautions for children were presented by P. E. Rohlsaus, and Scoutmaster George Bloch. It was decided that during the year talks would be given by the Field Commissioners, Cub Packs, "Fourth of July Safety," Scout Troops, "Wilderness First Aid," and Seascout Ships, "Water Safety Tournament."

The contents for Unit First Aid kits were approved with Skipper Lewis H. Fetherolf, of Milford, giving the American Red Cross recommendations. Good progress in first aid training was reported by Field Commissioner Robert Geiger. Tasty refreshments were provided by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Occupying the new chair of leading the Activities and Camping Committee of the Bucks County Scouting Council, Walter W. Pitkonka led the first meeting of his committee at his home. Recently Mr. Pitkonka was asked to take the new chairmanship from that of Training Chairman because of his great interest in developing Buccoo Scout Camps.

Churches To Observe World Day of Prayer

Tomorrow, 52 countries, representing every section of the world, will join in observing the World Day of Prayer. In Bensalem Township and surrounding areas, special programs for the observance of this important day have been planned.

Among the churches which will participate from Bensalem are the following: Church of the Redeemer, Andalusia; First Baptist Church, Andalusia; Cornwells M. E. Church; Christ Episcopal Church, Edgington; Bensalem M. E. Church, Hulmeville Road; Newportville Community Church; and the Edgington Presbyterian Church. The Wilkeson M. E. Church in Croydon is also co-operating.

As a part of the observance, cottage prayer meetings have been scheduled to be held in the following homes from 2:30 to 3:30 on Friday: Croydon—Messames Ruth, Sottrung, Jayne, and Miss Jones; Croydon Manor—Messames Stiles, Roberts and Parish; Bridgewater—Messames Bentsch, Biddle and Lamon; Newportville—Messames Ingram, Dewees, Matthews, Matlock, and Miss Cameron; Cornwells Heights—Messames Knirk, Schoenmacker, and Lily; Edgington—Messames Brown, Scott, and Haechen; Andalusia—Messames Kirk, Ingram, Ferguson and Locker.

The "Prayer Bell" will be rung every hour on the hour for a full minute beginning at six in the morning and closing at nine in the evening. A mass meeting will be held in the Edgington Presbyterian Church in the evening from eight to nine. At this meeting all groups will gather and a special service of prayer will be used.

The World Day of Prayer will begin in New Zealand and the Fiji Islands, and as the Day progresses, new groups in city, town, countryside and hamlet will join in praise and prayer until after some forty hours the Day will end at Gambell on St. Lawrence Island off the coast of Alaska thirty miles from the date line and about the same distance from the Arctic Circle.

The objectives of the prayers from all these groups will be that "We may be one in our service for Jesus Christ." "That barriers of race and class may be broken down." "That we may truly learn to follow Him whose way is the way of life for all men." "That we may be faithful witnesses of His love and His life-giving power." "And that men may find the way by which individuals and nations can live together in peace and understanding."

IN CACTUS JACK'S STATE

The eddies of recession have failed to ripple the prosperity of the Lone Star State, to judge from the commercial reports compiled by state and other research agencies. Accustomed as we are to look upon Texas as the greatest of the states in area, we are likely to forget its industrial importance. In fact, the 1937 figures reveal that it shines as the bright spot on the economic map of the nation.

Farm cash income for the year totaled $460,983,000, a gain of more than $61,000,000 over 1936, with cotton and wheat, despite low prices, accounting for gains of $47,500,000 and $23,000,000, respectively. Since Texas is primarily an agricultural state, the significance of these figures from the viewpoint of prosperity for the general public cannot be minimized.

In general industrial activity, also, there was a substantial increase in income as compared with 1936. In 1937, 86,326 workers were employed in 1,735 establishments, or 3.3 per cent more than in December of the previous year, while payrolls were up 11 per cent.

The expansion of the petroleum business is indicated by the index of runs of crude oil to still, which stands at 169 as compared with 152 the previous year. It is estimated that at least $200,000,000 was expended in the state in the search for new sources of oil. Permits were granted for the drilling of 17,086 new wells scattered through 197 of the 254 counties. Of these, 11,319 new producers were brought in, each releasing its quota of new money for the Texas communities.

Income from the oil, which is drawn from the earth at the rate of approximately 1,400,000 barrels a day, brings owners, workmen and others connected with the industry an aggregate income of about $500,000,000 a year. A large increase in bank loans, deposits and resources also is taken to indicate the healthy condition of business.

TWO-WHEELERS ON ROADS

Traffic, one of the most confusing and difficult problems besetting municipal and state authorities, is complicated by a factor to which few persons give a word but which must be coped with in measure designed to reduce fatalities and lessen mishaps, and that is the bicycle.

In some states laws regulating bicycle riding on the city streets and country highways have been enacted, although as yet not rigidly enforced in all communities. Efforts are being made by safety engineers and other agencies to compel bicyclists to conform with many of the rules that govern automobiles, even to night lights or reflectors.

Ask a change agent to give you his guess at the number of bicycles in the United States and he may say 100,000, 200,000, maybe 500,000; the actual number runs into the millions. There are no official figures since there are no licenses to go by, but the huge number of bicycles in active use is hinted at by the manufacturing records of the industry. More than 3,000,000 bicycles have been manufactured and sold during the last ten years, 40 per cent of this number in the last two years. Approximately 38,000,000 pounds of steel went into bicycle manufacturing in 1937.

Following his latest feat of revamping the British cabinet, Mussolini is taking a breathing spell before going on with his work.

sold to magazines and newspapers. It became known that one syndicate had been offered the newspaper rights for $100,000, but had declined. The statement was made that of this sum a literary agent was to receive ten per cent, Judge Sam Rosenman, who did the work, thirty-five per cent, and the remaining fifty-five per cent, it was learned, went to the President.

The following is the newspaper paragraph: "To an inquiry as to whether the net revenue for the sale of the books and the magazine and newspaper rights would go to charity, the answer from the White House secretary was that it would not and that the President's statement at this press conference today covered the whole subject. The explanation is that the proceeds belong to the President."

That statement stood uncontradicted in the White House. Not one of the White House officials felt that the White House was not profiting from the sale of the books and newspapers. The word "charity" was used, it was said, "because the proceeds of the books and the magazine and newspaper rights would go to charity, the answer from the White House secretary was that it would not and that the President's statement at this press conference today covered the whole subject. The explanation is that the proceeds belong to the President."

"EXTRA FARE" by Edna Robb Webster

"Well," Jake withdrew again into his taciturn shell of shyness and reserved silence with an awkward apology, "I guess I was a little hasty, but it gets me so god-darned hot up to be accused of anything dishonest, I sort o' lose my balance."

Gaines laughed amiably. "Oh, that's all right. But say, I sure would pity that thief if you ever laid hands on him." His throat felt dry with the instant of fear which had overtaken him at the venom in Jake's penetrating, hard, blue eyes as their gaze had been brought from the contemplation of far horizons to be concentrated on his accuser.

The small, elderly man folded his paper and left the car without further comment. The others exchanged glances. Harry Bortin spoke first, "If you ask me, gentlemen, he is the most suspicious character on this westbound train. What's he made up like a rancher for, when he looks like a gentleman? He won't talk with anyone, and gets up and leaves whenever anyone else starts talking." He looked to each one of them for agreement with his suggestion.

"Oh, I don't know," Mervin Gaines contradicted, "there are lots of queer people everywhere. Plenty of suspicious characters on every train. And why must the thief be on this train, anyway? I wouldn't bet a nickel to a thousand that he is on any train, much less on this particular one. These detectives get all excited over a false clue and flash it around the world to give the newspapers a break and to make people think they are doing something. They have to keep up the excitement for a while on a thing like this, where the public's money is involved."

"I wouldn't be surprised if you're right," Kirby agreed, crushing out his cigarette stub in an ash tray. "By the way, I have a friend on this train who would like to meet you before we reach Los Angeles. She's a columnist on the Star-Tribune and destined to see you later in Hollywood, so it may as well be sooner, while you have time on your hands and a chance to make an individual impression away from the studio mob. What do you say?"

Gaines shrugged and flipped his ash on the floor, smiling his hard smile as if he were granting a generous favor. "I'm on," he said. "I give you my word it's the richest I have ever granted an individual."

travel in seclusion, but decided to go public for a change of atmosphere. Rather interesting, isn't it?" "And I have you one better. I'm in the upper layer where I can look down on the rest. A new experience for me, too," he shrugged. "How about meeting the lady right now, then? She'll be waiting for me, so I think I'll go outside." He crossed to the door and held it open. Gaines nodded assent and passed through jauntily.

The door snapped shut behind them with a metal clang and the glances of the three men who remained followed their exit.

Harry Bortin stretched and yawned, scoring social etiquette and the admonitions of his bride concerning the conduct of passengers on extra-fare trains. "Huh! either one of them could be a thief. Who knows? I'm askin' you—why was that tall guy in such a hurry to get to the coast that he takes an upper berth on a fast train, with trains leaving Chicago every few hours?"

"Well, there could be more than one reason for that," the bland one suggested. "I'm in an upper, myself. But I have to meet a client before his boat sails on Monday for Honolulu. My name's Murray."

"Glad to know you—mine's Bortin," the other returned. "Well, I guess it's about time to turn in. Tired out just loafin' around. I didn't know a train could be so tiresome."

"If you lived most of your life on 'em you'd get used to it like I have," Murray offered. "It's all in gettin' used to anything—even marriage," he winked. "Now me, I wouldn't take a chance on that, and you wouldn't travel for a living. It takes all kinds of people to make a world." He offered his true platitudes with the air of a great philosopher dispensing wisdom.

Kirby found Jaxie in the first section beyond the corridor, facing the woman from lower ten across a table on which lay a row of cards. Both looked up as the two men came down the aisle. Kirby stopped abruptly.

"Well, here you are! You do hold the record for getting acquainted with people, Miss Cameron. A born newspaper woman, I can see that. Am I intruding?"

Jaxie smiled, her eyes shining with pleasure at seeing him more than she was aware. Gaines did not miss the attraction of her animated beauty. "Not at all, Mr. Elliott. This is Miss Proctor. She is telling me fortune with cards—Isn't that exciting?"

Gaines bowed suavely to the two ladies, but his eyes fastened upon Jaxie's lovely face like the eyes of a hungry fox. For an instant she felt queerly frightened, but her own eyes sought Kirby's merry blue ones; and everything righted itself. She moved over in the seat and invited, "Don't you want to sit down and listen to my fortune? It was just getting exciting when you came in."

"Delighted," Gaines accepted, and took the proffered place beside Jaxie while Kirby swung his long legs across the arm of the seat beside Miss Proctor. "What was she telling you?"

"That I was on a long journey which was going to prove even more interesting and profitable than I had anticipated."

"Ah! a raise in salary when you return to the office with the bag all browned to a turn," Kirby interrupted.

"Or an offer to star in the movies when you reach Hollywood," Gaines corrected boldly.

Miss Proctor glanced shyly at the two men and suggested hesitantly "Perhaps we had better postpone this until later."

"Oh, are we intruding?" Kirby started to rise quickly.

"No—only you will think it is just foolish—what I am telling Miss Cameron."

She was a plain, mousey little woman with a coiffure of a decade earlier as shy and colorless and meek as Jaxie was aggressive and vivacious and glowing.

Blunt, work-worn hands shuffled the cards nervously.

"Not at all!" Kirby assured her with sober gusto. "Say, this is interesting! And if you can tell Miss Cameron what she wants to know, we'd like to know a few things about ourselves, wouldn't we, Gaines? I hope we have a future, at least. On the level, Miss Proctor, we want to listen in. Please go on."

"Very well, if Miss Cameron has no objection," she consented, shifting the cards on the table into a pattern and handing the remainder of the deck over to Jaxie. "Shuffle these again and think of your wish."

Jaxie's eyes sparkled with excitement as she shuffled the cards with quick, deft movements. Her glance met Kirby's as she returned them.

Miss Proctor divided and selected, fitted more cards into the pattern on the table. "You face a very important change in your life—a good change. But before that occurs, you will have considerable trouble and worry. The man you love has come into your life, but you are not yet sure of your own heart. You favor another man, now, but you will soon make a definite decision."

"Say! this is exciting," Kirby slid down into the seat beside the fortune teller, and Jaxie's face burned self-consciously.

A snub seemed to be called for. She interpreted lightly, "That must be Tommy Ackerman, in the office."

Hitler's Understudy Holds Unique Power

Hermann Wilhelm Goering . . . Germany's man of many uniforms

Holding a position unique in Europe as understudy to Chancellor Adolf Hitler, Hermann Wilhelm Goering is regarded as No. 2 man in German power. Economic dictator, he is expected to become military dictator of Germany as well, and demise or downfall of Hitler would mean his ascendancy to dictatorship. Goering, man of many uniforms which he designs himself, is the only original Nazi overlord whose family is of the aristocracy. His father was a Prussian army officer. As a World War flyer, Goering brought down 23 allied planes. His present wife, his second, is the former Emmy Sonneman, Berlin actress, whom he married in 1935.

By BERNHARD WULF
International Illustrated News Writer
BERLIN—Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Herr Hitler's right-hand man, stands as unique among high government officials of all Europe.

While Mussolini has taken care to denote possible rivals and Josef Stalin has no understudy, only Hitler has a Goering.

As robust as Hitler is ascetic, Goering is today Germany's economic dictator. Soon he will become the military dictator, it is predicted. And, in the event of Hitler's demise or downfall, he undoubtedly would be dictator absolute.

Man of Many Jobs

Following the recent Nazi upheaval, Goering became Germany's only active field marshal, and a member of Hitler's new privy council on foreign affairs.

(He already was dictator of the four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency, minister of aviation and television, prime minister of Prussia, president of the Reichstag, commissar of raw materials, and supreme head of the national weather bureau.)

Goering is the only original Nazi overlord whose family is of the aristocracy. His father was a Prussian army officer, later becoming first governor general of German Southwest Africa.

Ruthless, a man of brute strength and unquestioned courage, Goering has had a colorful and impressive career since his birth at an upper Bavarian chateau in 1893.

Like his father, he attended military school, and joined the German flying corps during the World War. Quickly developing into one of the most skillful pursuit pilots, he was assigned to the famous "flying circus" commanded by Baron Manfred von Richthofen.

When the "ace of aces" was killed in aerial combat, young Goering was given a captaincy and named commander of the squadron. He brought down 23 Allied planes and won the highest Prussian military decoration, "Four Le Merites."

Penniless After War

Jobless and penniless after the war, he went to work as pilot for a Swedish airline. One stormy night his plane was forced down on the estate of Karin von Fock, young Swedish baroness. They fell in love in typical storybook fashion, and Goering took her back to Germany as his wife.

After studying history and economics at the University of Munich, Goering met Hitler, an Austrian ex-house painter then regarded as a fanatic without a future. "From the moment I saw him, I belonged to him heart and soul," writes Goering in his book, "Germany Reborn."

He joined the Naz movement, and was severely wounded in the unsuccessful putsch of 1923 that sent Hitler to jail. Four years later, returning from political exile, Goering started his ascendancy to power. In 1927 he was elected to the Reichstag as one of eight Nazi deputies. In 1930 he was re-elected as one of 110, and in 1932 he became president.

Weds Actress

The first Frau Goering died in 1932, and for two years her widower was disconsolate. Then, in 1934, he met Emmy Sonneman, a blonde actress, in a Hamburg theater. On April 10, 1935, he married her at Berlin, with Hitler as a witness.

Emmy and Hermann have become known as most gracious hosts. They have entertained the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Mussolini, the Lindberghs, and most of Europe's foreign ministers.

Vain, Goering is known for his love of showy uniforms and sumptuous surroundings. Fat, he has become the target of many jokes. Today he is one of the most powerful men in the world, looming large on the political horizon, although in title he is still merely a lieutenant—a satellite to the Fuehrer's sun.

nor Judge Rosenman will profit by the newspaper and magazine rights, but only from the sale of the books, the returns from which, the White House says, "it has a feeling will not be considerable."

IT TOOK just three weeks to discover that the President's first statement, in which he made not the slightest mention that the newspaper and magazine proceeds, differing from the book sales, were to be diverted to an "unnamed public service," did not cover the whole subject. As a matter of fact, keeping the proceeds from newspaper and magazine sales may diminish the amount of his profit, but it does not in the least alter the principle or change the ethics or make it any better taste. If one is commercialization of the White House, so is the other. The difference is in degree only. If he occupied a lower office, Mr. Roosevelt's denial would be more frankly described. It seems a mild thing to say that clearly it was due to the heat.

the commercial class members experience in cutting of stencils.

A number of Bucks County schools will co-operate in the production of the magazine.

The cover will be in charge of Newtown. Quakertown will produce the frontpiece and table of contents. Yardley will have the staff and Bristol the editorial. Morrisville has the literary end; Doylestown, the news or activities; New Hope, the interviews; Buckingham, the sports; Bensalem, humor; and Southampton will handle the exchange.

Each school will be responsible for the composition, stencil-cutting, illustrating and proof-reading of their particular section. The A. W. Gill Company of Trenton has consented to have an electric mimeograph with autolip at their disposal and Quakertown will have charge of running it.

Langhorne will assemble the magazine; Springfield will do the stapling; Fallsington Township is to have charge of circulation.

for a short time, such as extra linen, air rings, back rests, crutches, bed pans, etc.

Thirteen child welfare visits were made to small children to aid mothers as needed. The nurse made 54 health supervision visits to schools and homes of school children.

The report also stated that mothers who realized the danger of complications following measles in young children met their responsibility by careful isolation and protected the young children.

McLaughlin, of Tyro Hall, said the Grange would deeply miss Mr. Henry, who was an active worker in the Grange and the community in which he lived. "His high principles of living made him a dependable, worthy citizen," Mrs. McLaughlin sang "Abide With Me."

A recess was called during which luncheon was served in Langhorne fire station by the Ladies Auxiliary.

The first order of business in the afternoon was obligating in the fifth degree, three new members, Mrs. Catharine Prall, Middletown; Mrs. Ethel Z. Darnell and George C. Darnell, Tyro Hall.

The Grange then began working in the fourth degree.

The legislative committee reported it opposed the Wages and Hours Bill, which in its opinion will increase federal supervision and cause a rise in taxes. A motion was made and passed that the secretary send a letter to the Grange State Legislative Committee that Pomona 22 is supporting said committee in opposing the bill, and also send a letter to both Pennsylvania Senators that this Grange does not approve the bill.

Installation of officers was next, with an installation team from Trappe, Montgomery County, consisting of Master Carl N. Dunmore; Marshal Harold Y. Gotwals, Emblem Bearer; Mrs. Harold T. Allbach; Regalia Bearer, Mrs. Harold Y. Gotwals; Pianist, Mrs. Carl N. Dunmore.

phia; Treasurer, Jesse G. Webster, Middletown; Secretary, Miss Margaret R. Slack, Pineville; Gatekeeper, Fred Watson, Delaware Valley; Pomona, Miss Liddle Wilson, Delaware Valley; Flora, Mrs. Edna Sickle, Pineville; Ceres, Mrs. Stella Short, Carversville; Lady Assistant Steward, Mrs. Ida Lake, Tyro Hall; Executive Committee, Moore Price, three year term; Henry Pickering, two year term. Finance committee, Howard Paxson, one year; B. Palmer Tomlinson, three years.

Worthy Master, Frank L. Magill, said he was glad to report that Clarence Smith had accepted an appointment as Pomona Deputy, and to reappoint J. Harvey Jones as financial secretary. Worthy Master Magill thanked the members for his election to office and expressed the hope he can fill the office as well as the one who just vacated the chair. Each officer in turn was called upon, and each expressed the desire to serve faithfully.

Past Master B. Palmer Tomlinson presented the new Master with a new gavel which he had purchased on his recent trip in the South, hoping the new Master will derive as much pleasure in using it as he had in using the old one. Worthy Master Magill accepted the gavel, saying that that proved the Past Master always has the Grange in heart and mind even while traveling. Mr. Magill said he would use the gavel to the credit of the organization.

The Master appointed the following committees: Legislation, Moore Price, Alvin Tomlinson, Miss Rose Wright, Paul Knight, Mrs. Mabel Briggs, Earl Handy, Mrs. Henry Pickering, Hospitality, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Howard Paxson, Mrs. Florence Dyer, Mrs. Anna Thompson, Emma Satterthwaite, Miss Liddle Wilson, and Frank Lake. Home Economics, Helen Satterthwaite, Mrs. William Newbold, Mrs. Edna Sickle, Sue Wagner, Mrs. Herman Heavener, Mrs. Emma Rockafellow, Mrs. Harding, Agriculture committee, Amos Satterthwaite, Joseph Smith, M. Hubert Walton, Edward Harding, B. Palmer Tomlinson, Henry Pickering and Harvey Vassey. Carl N. Dunmore urged the need of training younger people so they will be ready to take up Grange work as the older people pass on.

Mrs. Harold T. Allebach said she enjoys Grange because of the spirit of friendliness in visiting about the counties, the exchange of ideas, its educational advantages and the great opportunity of enlarging one's vision.

A rising vote of thanks was given the installation team and also Middletown Grange for its hospitality.

Grange was closed by singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

entrance at Buccoo Camps has been nearly completed through the work of Mr. Pitkonka, and several of his workmen. The Trail is to have plaques for those who have been active in Scouting, and are now deceased. Relatives or friends will be asked to arrange for the markers.

Bristol Troop No. 1, Scoutmaster Herbert A. Pettit, Jr., was selected to give "The Jamboree" act for the 1938 Council Meeting at Doylestown on Monday evening, March 28th. Skip-pers are being encouraged to have full attendance of their Ships at the Easter Party to be held at Morrisville on Saturday evening, April 2nd. It was announced the Honor Campers Brotherhood, The Order of the Arrow, are making arrangements for improvements to the Buccoo road by having a week-end at camp.

Joseph Kish suggested the having of an Indian legend at the annual Camporee at Bowman's Hill during the June Camporee. It was recommended that the Order of the Arrow be asked to present the scene. There was a discussion of site work for Buccoo Camps during 1938 by Ronald Swain and Wesley Hart. All members of the committee were enthusiastic over the plan of arranging for an early effort to have everything ready when the summer season begins.

It was announced by Scout Executive William F. Livermore that 50 per cent of the sites were taken at Buccoo for the coming season. All units that have not made reservation at this time are being urged to send them in to Scouting headquarters. Suggestions by Neighborhood Commission William Wainman that Commissioners immediately check on the progress of the Units in their plans for Scouting Day at Morrisville on Saturday, April 9th, were accepted. Plans for a Council marble shooting championship were given by Field Commissioner A. B. Stiles.

Death and Destruction Take Toll in California

rescuers on the shore could reach them.

At the same time lives were lost in other sections of the city and scores were imperiled. Thousands were forced from their homes.

The flood was the heaviest downpour ever to strike the region.

Waters cascaded through streets. Bridges were torn away. Automobiles were demolished. Railway lines were paralyzed. Telephone and telegraph circuits were down. All method of communication, save short wave radio, was crippled.

Practically all streets in Los Angeles and scores of surrounding communities, including Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Glendale and Compton, resembled rivers.

The property damage was soaring into the millions of dollars with no definite estimate readily available.

The disaster reached major proportions and thousands of relief workers were pressed into emergency duty.

Scores of rumors circulated through the disaster stricken cities. Through the maze came reports which were only partially verified. They related pitiful tales of death.

Beside the group on the foot bridge swept into the ocean five others were reported to have perished in collapsing homes and other crumbled structures.

From San Bernardino came a report that five persons drowned in flood waters in Little Canyon. Among these victims were three men, a woman and a boy.

Weather bureaus reported, however, that the worst of the torrential rains was over.

With more than 30 persons dead and missing, Los Angeles today was cut off from contact with the outside world.

All communications with the city failed early today, although it was not believed a general disaster had struck the city, because of the localized flood condition earlier.

The flood waters were the result of four days of terrific rains which left total record precipitations of 14 inches in some sections of the stricken area.

The streams poured their raging torrents into the heart of several cities.

The Red Cross and American Legion mobilized hundreds of relief workers who sought out the injured and administered emergency aid. Canteens were established and the cold and hungry and the homeless assured that the peak of the storm had passed, lined up this morning, some grim-faced, others smiling, as they slipped warm coffee.

MORRISVILLE J. V. TEAM DEFEATS BRISTOL FIVE

The Gillard-tutored basketballers couldn't stop the fast-stepping Morrisville J. V. five when the Blue and Gold won out with the comfortable score of 30 to 10.

The Morrisville quint ran the local five roughshod as they led the fray all the way through. In the first period, the Bulldog Juniors ran up six counters to Bristol's one, with Joe Chaballa being the only local scorer. In the second and concluding quarters, the Blue and Gold boys continued to increase their margin over the homeesters to win out with the 30 to 10 tabulation.

For the hometowners, Chart Tomlinson, Pete Mancini and Joe Chaballa were each high scorers with two tallies apiece.

Morrisville's J. V. ace tallier was Al Huggins, when he scored five double-digits and one charity toss for 11 points.

Others attending: the Misses Sara May Bassett, Helen DeWitt, Ethel George, Amelia Leeper, Isabel Margerum, Jean Roberts, Norma Davidson, Lola and June McLaughlin, Jean Rosser, Julia Houser, Marion Mulholland, Martha Gibson.

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

THE GRAND

One of the year's outstanding spectacles will be shown Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre with the coming of "The Bad Man of Brimstone," starring Wallace Beery in an epic saga of the lawless West.

Staged against the grim background of the West's most rugged panoramas, "The Bad Man of Brimstone" presents a saga of the unregenerate town of Brimstone, ruled with a ruthless six-gun by Wallace Beery.

Bringing to the screen all the talents which have endeared him to the hearts of America's picture-going millions, Beery is assisted by Dennis O'Keefe, recent cinematic discovery, and by Virginia Bruce.

O'Keefe, as a young Eastern prize-fight champion who arrives in the old Western town of Brimstone and straightway begins to clean up the lawless element, stands out as the greatest acting discovery since the advent of Clark Gable.

Miss Bruce, in her role as daughter of Brimstone's Justice of the Peace, provides an exciting incentive to O'Keefe in his cleanup efforts.

Filed against the majestic wilderness of the Kanab National Forest in Utah, the picture is replete with startling natural scenic beauty and with fidelity to the exciting period when the West was a synonym for wilderness.

THE BRISTOL

For the third time Nino Martin's golden tenor voice, which has thrilled millions of radio listeners and opera patrons of the American and European continents, has been filmed for a feature-length screen production.

Martini stars, with Joan Fontaine featured, in "Music for Madame," the story of an Italian singer who seeks fame in the movie capital. He barely arrives in Hollywood before he falls into the hands of clever thieves, who use him as a pawn in a daring jewel robbery.

The Italian virtuoso sings six songs ranging from his favorite operatic renditions to light and melodic ballads written especially for him by such well known composers as Rudolf Friml, Gus Kahn, Allie Wrubel and Herb Magidson.

Hailed as one of the important dramatic discoveries of the year, lovely blonde Joan Fontaine is said to be an ideal romantic partner for Martini.

To Jesse L. Lasky, who first brought Martini to America and to the screen.

goes the credit for production of the musical. John Blystone directed this RKO Radio musical romance.

PLAN TO SAVE TIME FOR THE ACTIVITIES OF FAMILY MEMBERS

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)

Every Bucks county homemaker wonders where to find time to do extra things. Why not decide now to look for these extra minutes?

Extra minutes will give the homemaker time to read, time for community activities, time to spend with family and for relaxation.

By eliminating unnecessary tasks, a few minutes may be saved. Ask yourself the question, "Is it essential to the happiness of the family that I iron underwear and sheets?" or "How much do I save by making my own bread, and what is my labor worth per hour when I bake?"

Perhaps there are tasks which may be done by other members of the family. Boys may keep the wood box filled, and girls may help to keep the house dusted. Each child may make his own bed and keep his room in order.

Study methods for doing various household duties. How many steps or motions may be eliminated by better arrangements of equipment and furniture? Because we have always done a job a certain way is no reason why it needs to be done the same way today. Perhaps the time taken to wash dishes may be cut down by scalding instead of drying all the dishes with towels.

It is fun to try out new and different methods.

A kitchen tool or cleaning aid may help to do a task in less time. Maybe a rearrangement of equipment will give extra minutes.

Saving one hour a day means saving 15 days a year. All this extra time may mean the difference between being a good housekeeper and a good homemaker.

Study your methods of work and plan to save both time and energy for your family.

COX FELS DUSEK WITH FOREARM BLOW

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 3.—The Omaha riot squad, Joe, Ernie, Rudy and Wally Dusek held a family reunion last night at the Arena, and the largest crowd to witness a wrestling match in this city in many a moon turned out to attend the homecoming.

From the opening bout to the final going the brothers Dusek kept the crowd in an uproar with their rough and tumble antics, while engaging four worthy opponents.

Joe, gradually replacing Ernie as the best exponent of the Dusek type of grappling, was pitted against Joe Cox, one of the toughest men to enter the game in the past decade. For 25 minutes they staged as bruising a tussle as has been waged here in some time. Cox had the better of the exchange throughout and finally felled Joe with a stinging forearm blow that brought rounds of applause from the fans.

Ernie, the heaviest member of the House of Dusek, proved too much for Mike Mazurki, ex-Manhattan College grinner, in the semi windup, a 45-minute affair. Ernie pummeled the towering Mazurki for 30 minutes before downing Mike, much to the disgust of the gallery.

Papa Rudy, oldest member of the tribe still in the game, fought a bruising 30-minute draw with Jack League, a promising youngster. Rudy used a hammerlock on Jack repeatedly, and the latter was handicapped since his left arm dangled from his side during most of the fray.

Wally, a cousin of the above mentioned trio, took the second match on the card when he pinned Ralph Garibaldi, brother of the famous Gino, in 18 minutes with a body press. Andy Rascher won the opening bout when he flattened roly-poly Joe Maynard to the mat after 15 minutes of lively tussling.

BRISTOL HOCKEY TEAM TO PLAY CHESTER HERE

Friday night the Bristol roller hockey team will put on their annual skating party at the Bristol Recreation Center. This program will include a skating party, hockey game and a professional skating exhibition.

The hockey game is expected to be a very exciting one as the visiting team represents the great Leopard Skating Rink in Chester, and this aggregation claims to be the championship team of the East, which the Bristol boys say remains to be proven Friday night.

The professional skating couple exhibition will also be quite an attraction as they are a well known team from Wilmington, Del.

APPENZELER NOSES OUT CHEWNING IN LEAGUE

By Louis Tomlinson

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 3.—Going on a scoring rampage in the last half of the race of the Lower Bucks basketball conference, Bud Appenzeller, ace guard for Jimmy Doheny's Orange and Black quintet from Fallington, carried off the individual honors of the circuit when he nosed out his teammate, George Chewning in the home stretch. This was the story told in the final official statistics of the 1938 campaign which were released to the public by the league's secretary, Coach George Reimer, of Bensalem, here, today.

Appenzeller won the title by rolling up a total of 27 field goals and tossing in 11 foul shots to add to his 74 tallies counted from the floor to give him a grand total of 85 markers, which was just two better than that which George Chewning could produce, and thereby gained him the distinction of capturing the individual laurels for the current season just concluded. Chewning dropped in 36 double deuckers and sunk as many foul shots as did Appenzeller, but that one field goal short meant the difference between sharing the crown and being only the runner-up for the title.

A substitute for mbit of the first round of play, Appenzeller received his chance from an incident. In the game between Bristol at Trenton, Ben Patterson, who captained at center for Fallington, was injured when he "threw" his "trick" knee out of place in going after a pass tossed by Johnny Schaffer. Patterson's injury was so painful that he had to leave the game and couldn't return. As a matter of fact he remained out of the lineup for the balance of the season. In this emergency Doheny gave Appenzeller a chance to prove his worth, which he ultimately did without much difficulty in covering himself with glory.

In the final chapter of that Bristol game, Fallington put on a belated rally which was led by none other than Appenzeller himself for it was he who dropped in three consecutive field goals that brought the home team to within a point of Bristol's margin. Six points went into the scorebooks for Bud that night to boost his previous total of 20 points up to 26 at the close of the first round, since that was Fallington's last tilt at the halfway mark of the circuit.

This total of 26 points at that stage of the race was good for only the No. 7 spot in the individual race and that was no less than 23 markers behind the leader at that time, Chewning, who had racked up a total of 49 tallies to lead by the comfortable margin of 16 points over his nearest rival, Bill Gallagher. But with the advent of the second half of the circuit opening, Appenzeller lost no time in getting away to a fast start. To begin with, he sank a quartet of field goals and two fouls for 10 points in the Southampton tilt, then garnered 16 more against Bensalem in the following league encounter to pull up to second place in rapid order. With 52 points to his credit already, he was yet to perform his greatest feat of the year, which was the most outstanding individual accomplishment anyone in the circuit could achieve. In the next contest, which was against Buckingham, Appenzeller amassed the astounding total of 24 counters to smash all previous high scoring honors for an individual in a single contest in league competition. This bit of work shot Bud into the front of the pack for the honors and there he remained for the rest of the campaign although pushed all the way by Chewning who put up a desperate fight in an attempt to regain his lead.

Nine more tallies rolled into the nets for Appenzeller in the Morrisville fray but due to being out with pneumonia the week before the Bristol tilt, Bud's play fell off with the result he failed to score. However, Chewning too had a bad night and his three points in that tussle was just two short of the mark he was shooting at hence he lost out to his team-mate, Appenzeller, by that margin, 85-83. It was a steep uphill fight all the way for Bud but he clambered to the top and remained there once he reached that position, and such work on his part deserves recognition in some way.

Besides Appenzeller and Chewning leading the way for individual honors, Fallington presented two other stars among the first ten highest scorers in the league in the persons of Vic Roberts and Captain Johnny Schaffer. Roberts captured the No. 8 position and Schaffer was one behind in ninth place with 52 and 47 points respectively.

Although far behind from the start, both Bill Gallagher and Wilbur VanLenten put up a gallant but losing fight in their dash toward the individual crown. Gallagher especially did good work in cutting the margin of 16 points from second place at the halfway mark to nine at the finish line.

and yet that was only good for third place in the standings. Finishing up with 34 field goals and eight fouls, Gallagher compiled a final total of 76 tallies, while VanLenten, in fourth place, racked up 29 double-deckers and tossed in 10 free shots for 68 markers for his season's work. Captain Al Hidy of Buckingham, too, deserves much credit for his sensational play all year with the cellar dwellers, pacing them individually to fifth place among the scorers in spite of the fact that he missed several frays due to an injury to his knee. Hidy pushed into the nets 27 floor shots and eight from the foul line to give him a grand total of 62 counters.

Incidentally, with Hidy in fifth place and counting only 62 points, he equaled, and the first four surpassed the mark set by "Punk" Zeffleries, ace forward for Coach "Bill" Dougherty's Cardinal and Gray five, to win the title last winter. In winning last year with 62 markers, Zeffleries nosed out another one of Jimmy Doheny's proteges from Fallington, namely Freddie Breigle, star center for the Orange and Black, by a mere four points.

The balance of the first ten scorers included Captain Bucky Wallace and Andy Gavin, of Morrisville, each finishing up with precisely the same totals in field and foul goals and therefore final points. Both scored 26 twin-pointers and eight fouls for 60 markers. Then came Vic Roberts of Fallington, scoring 52 points on 24 field goals and four free tosses; Captain Johnny Schaffer of Fallington with 47 points on 20 floor shots and seven from the foul line, and finally Jimmy Leiberman of Bensalem who sunk as many fouls as field goals, 15 in all, to wind up with 45 counters.

Completing the leading 15 individual scorers were Alex Malone, Bensalem, 44 points; Bill Erwin, Buckingham, 43; Stan Prawdzik, Buckingham, 43; Jim Yeager, Morrisville, 42; and Harry Stirzel, Southampton, 42 tallies, in that order.

In glancing over the figures you will note that 23 points separated the winner and Hidy, who was in fifth place. And yet only 20 points separated fifth place from 15th position, showing the closeness of individual scoring among the last ten who fought desperately to improve their standings among the leaders.

While Appenzeller led in scoring double-deckers with 37, Jimmy Leiberman, of Bensalem, and Stan Prawdzik, of Buckingham, led the foul shooters with a total of 15 free tosses sunk by each.

Final official statistics of individual scoring for the Lower Bucks Basketball circuit for 1938 follow:

Soviet Trial Upset

Moscow, Mar. 3.—An awkward upset marked the trial of 21 defendants in Soviet Russia's latest spy sensation today, when Nikolai Krestinsky, former vice-commissar of foreign affairs, refused to join his co-prisoners in abject pleas of guilty to all charges.

Krestinsky's refusal supplied an unexpected and surprising contretemps. The other 20 following the example set by defendants in the numerous other massed trials which have followed in the train of Josef Stalin's ready "purge" of Trotskyist elements, had thrown themselves on the mercy of the court, knowing full well that death sentences were almost inevitable.

Krestinsky's attitude was all the more surprising, as, from the official point of view, he was the first defendant. He had been specifically accused of espionage works on behalf of General Hans VonSeeck, of the German army, for which he allegedly received an emolument of $2,000 a week over an unspecified period.
